

CHILD SAFETY IS SERIOUS BUSINESS

That is why the window covering industry uses warning tags, warning labels and other methods to communicate the potential hazards of corded window coverings. The warning show here, for example communicates the important message about cords being potential strangulation hazard and suggests choosing cordless alternatives or products with inaccessible cords.

 This warning applies to all Carole Fabrics® Soft Roman Shade Styles with accessible lift cords.*

The 2018 ANSI/WCMA safety standard requires that all products ordered with free hanging and accessible operating cords have a default length of no more than 40% of the product height when the window covering is fully deployed. 40% length limitation is intended to help prevent accidental strangulation injury or death to children.
